CROCKER PARENT TEACHER UNIT IN
REGULAR SESSION*Many Entertaining Features
On Program of Events
At Last Meeting

Crocker P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting in the P. T. A. room at General Pershing School on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mrs. Nora Clifton, president, announced the appointment of Mrs. Virginia Davidson as membership chairman for the year. Mrs. Davidson is one of our enthusiastic new members, and we are looking forward to the addition of many others to our membership list under her guidance.

The members of Crocker Unit were pleased with the addition of a violin to the piano while they sang their P. T. A. song. Robert Knox of Watsonville, grandson of Mr. J. E. Walker, was the violinist. Later he played another number for the program. Robert is an excellent example of what the school orchestras are doing for the children today, as he received his entire training in one, and in an accomplished musician.

Mrs. Ann Eason, chairman of recreation, spoke on the supervised play on the elementary school grounds, of which she has charge, and asked any mothers who could to help her on Saturdays. She and one teacher have between 150 and 200 children to direct in their play each week.

Elliott Sidley, who was Crocker School winner of the prize for the best essay on "The School Bonds," recited his essay to the Unit. It was beautifully written and excellently delivered. Crocker P. T. A. is proud that Elliott is a pupil of our school and presented him with a small gift in token of appreciation of his efforts.

Two other boys of Crocker School contributed to the program. Albert Cavallero rendered an accordion solo and Jack Cook played the piano.

Mrs. Lloyd Beach, motion picture chairman of the Seventeenth District, was the speaker of the day. She gave an interesting and instructive talk on motion pictures.

Mrs. Howe read a poem.

Mrs. Marie Gaitor, recording secretary and delegate to the last district meeting, read her report on the meeting.

Mrs. J. E. Walker, district thrift chairman, reported on the district conference held at the Jefferson Union High School on October 5.

The regular time set for the executive board meeting was the last Friday of each month. The members of the board plan to serve a luncheon at each of these meetings. The next one will be held at the home of Mrs. Ethel Dorn, No. 2 Risel street. Mrs. Dorn will be assisted by Mrs. Edith Frazer.

The next regular meeting of the Unit will be held on Tuesday afternoon, November 13. All are invited to attend. At the close of the business session, refreshments will be served.

RALLY IN SUPPORT OF DEMOCRATS

The Daly City Auditorium was well filled last Saturday evening by representative citizens, the occasion being a Democratic rally.

The session was presided over by Johnson, who introduced the speakers.

The audience first heard Pat Devlin, who announced he was from Los Angeles and an Irishman. He spoke of the merits of the candidates whose cause he espoused—Upton Sinclair and Sheridan Downey. He derided the efforts of those who attacked them and said no mud slinging would be indulged in by him unless absolutely necessary for self protection.

The next speaker was A. J. Carroll, secretary of the San Francisco Apartment House Owners and Lessees Association. He reviewed work of the construction of the bridge as affecting this side of the bay, and said the taxpayers here were being taxed out of all proportion to the benefits they would derive. He said the present state administration was responsible for this situation.

Then followed Mr. Crawford, who stressed the desirability of a change in state governmental affairs at this time, saying he believed that a Democratic state regime would be beneficial to the citizens of this commonwealth.

Miss Barth was the last speaker on the program. She delivered quite a lengthy address, lauding her candidates and urging her hearers to go to the polls and cast their ballots for Sinclair and Downey.

The audience appeared enthusiastic and impartial in their applause for the remarks of all the speakers.

Picture shows Estero Arroyo cut being filled. The work consists of the building of a new boulevard 2.4 miles long, connecting Sunset boulevard and Junipera Serra boulevard. Historical Background—Scene of Terry-Broderick duel. H. Q. Wise, superintendent; 1137 workers per week; $554,736 appropriated for work relief labor.

STATESMAN ACCENTS A HUMANE ATTITUDE

By J. W. MARCHBANK
(Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work)

This is going to be hodge-podge week. Many of the folk interested in mining truths and their corollaries have been making pertinent comment that is worth reviewing. Some of the discussion has to do directly with mining and some of it indirectly with mining as one of the bases of the new civilization that is fast on its way. That a few people are not astute enough to see the dawn is no fault of ours.

This sounds somewhat technical but it is important; all officials of the Department of Mines of British Columbia are to assemble next month at Victoria for a week's conference, at which a new policy will be laid down. In announcing the conference, George S. Pearson, Provincial Minister of Mines, said:

"The new policy will be based on the fundamental principle that the government's interest in mining, as in any other industry, is in the benefits and prosperity that it brings to the people of British Columbia."

In carrying out the thought about the interest the people have in mining, the statesman up north went into what may be termed a Rooseveltian vein, pointing out that no activity is worth while unless it is lifting the people to higher and higher levels and that the real results of any activity are to be measured in terms of human welfare.

Another thought of the northern minister of mines that not so long ago would have been considered rapidly revolutionary:

"I am proud of the mining industry of British Columbia. Mining companies have sacrificed dividends to give men dependent on them a decent degree of comfort. Wages have not been driven down as in many other industries which could have afforded to do less crowding in this direction than they did."

Earle W. Knight, managing editor of The Alaska Weekly, is noted for the snappy slant he gets on current events. So we are not surprised when we read in his column in the northern publication:

"An American Department of Dangerous Thoughts could consist of an open forum to which the best brains of industry, finance, labor and education circles would contribute opinions based on historic and economic fact from a standpoint grounded in the common knowledge that change is the inevitable order of progress and that the greatest good of the greatest number is the only worthwhile objective of any social order. That sort of a department in the government might go a long way toward perpetuating the American idea of social adjustment through the evolutionary rather than the revolutionary method."

Editor Knight is highly interested in mining development and realizes such development of the vital industry can only come along with orderly progress in the body politic.

A down-to-the-minute impression of conditions is given by Sidney Norman, mining expert of the Vancouver Sun, in a recent issue of that breezy and authoritative publication. Listen to what the northern writer has to say on a subject which we often dilated upon, that of the increase in the price of gold from $35 an ounce to $41.34.

"If our present economic system is to be maintained, if our civilization is to be perpetuated, then the price of gold must be further lifted and the debts of the world cut down.

"That is the only way this very obviously necessary end can be obtained, short of chaos and possible disappearance of what we now call civilization, in which millions starve, though brains and hands are willing, yes, anxious to do service."

LEGISLATION AS MIGHT AFFECT OUR EDUCATION

To Be Discussed At Next
Meeting of Jefferson
High School P. T. A.

"School Legislation" is to be the topic presented by Miss Pansy J. Abbott superintendent of schools of San Mateo County, at the next meeting of Jefferson Union High School Parent Teacher Association. Parents and teachers of the community are cordially invited to attend this meeting in the Little Theater of the High School, Tuesday evening, October 16, at 8 o'clock.

This is a timely subject for discussion, in view of the pending legislation affecting education. It is vitally necessary that friends of the public schools be alert and informed so that they may meet these issues intelligently. Armed with knowledge, they may demand of the legislative representatives that nothing further be done which will injure the educational welfare of our boys and girls in California.

Mrs. Vesta C. Menkleison, State Chairman of School Education, California Congress of Parents and Teachers Association, has listed, for our information, bills, including the following proposals that will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature:

1. The elimination of the fixed charge from the state Constitution.
2. Tuition fees in high schools.
3. Transfer of budget control from boards of education to non-educational bodies.
4. Tax limitations.
5. Rental of text books.
6. Apportionment of state school funds by some other officer other than the state superintendent of public instruction.
7. Abolishment of certain school activities and departments such as kindergartens, physical education and adult education.

The reading of the above proposals must indicate the need of study of our public school problems. Come to this meeting Tuesday evening and hear Miss Abbott speak. There will also be other interesting features on the program.

CROCKER P. T. A. WILL GIVE MONSTER WHIST

Crocker School P. T. A. Unit will hold an evening whist on Friday, October 19, in the General Pershing School.

The committee in charge—Mrs. Ann Eason, Mrs. Edith Frazer, Mrs. Byrne and Mrs. Howe—have secured many beautiful prizes and expect a large crowd.

Every member is requested to come and bring some other person.

NEW BOULEVARD FILL CONSTRUCTED

Out in the sand hills by Lake Merced men are moving mountains again with pick, shovel and wheelbarrow. Hundreds swarm over the terraced sides of the Estero Arroyo, mowing them down to create a huge fill over which, some day, the Lake Merced boulevard will pass in a wide sweeping curve.

From above it looks like the rising terraces of a Utah copper mine or a miniature Boulder Dam. Like ants men move along plank walks pushing barrow loads of sand. Along the terraces others swing picks and dig. Still others keep a steady stream of earth moving down chutes to waiting barrows below.

It is a SERA project employing construction men.

The men receive work according to their needs and those of their dependents. If a man's family budget requires employment at a full thirty hour week he is so employed. If only a day's work a week is needed to eke out his requirements, that is all he gets. Each is paid $3.75 for a six hour day, slightly more than was paid by the Civil Works Administration which the SERA succeeds.

On the east side of the Arroyo the men work in relays digging top soil, then wheeling it 125 feet to chutes, down which it plunges to waiting barrows who trundle it 150 feet to the yawning edge of the fill.

The forty men working from the chutes to the fill pushed 5853 loads yesterday, for example, or nearly 150 tons as an answer to those who think SERA men loaf.

The men on the south side do not have to relay, but work directly from the bank to the pit's edge. No man, however, has to push a barrow more than 300 feet. While he is making his journey his pick mate is busy knocking down the earth to fill his barrow on the return trip.

The CWA brought the boulevard to the edge of the Arroyo. The SERA men will take it across. When they started a month ago they moved about twenty loads a day apiece, figuring the entire working force. They have pushed that figure up to 27.6 loads a day apiece now. They are getting toughened up.

SUPERVISED PLAY IS GOING OVER BIG

The idea of supervised play has caught on in a large way in Daly City. How happy the mothers are that their children now have suitable places to play on Saturdays under proper conditions.

This manner of recreation is a constructive force in child life—needed not only to build strong bodies, but also to develop those character traits which revolve around resourcefulness and courage.

This is one of the most beneficial ventures that has ever been adopted for the welfare of the younger children of our community.

Play will be supervised again tomorrow at the General Pershing and Jefferson Elementary School grounds from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

MYSTERY DEATH
VICTIM SOLVED
BY OLD FRIENDS*After Viewing Remains All
Positive They Are Those Of Frank Lange

The mutilated body of a man about 45 years of age was found apparently murdered, last Saturday evening at 6 o'clock on Salada Beach, one mile south of Mohr's auto camp. The body was discovered by Larry Graham and Chris Strohmeier.

The dead man has been identified as Frank Lange of 971 McAllister street, San Francisco, a retired mining man.

The identification was made by Mrs. Ann Ashton of 22 Turk street, a former landlady of Lange, and by Fred Weight, a painter of 424 Ivy street, a distant cousin, who spent his boyhood in Clintonville, Wisconsin, where Lange was reared. Attilio Firenze of 597 Hayes street, an acquaintance, also was sure of the man's identity.

An old friend of many years' standing, Eric Carlson of 971 1/2 McAllister street, after viewing the remains, was positive in his statement that the body was that of his neighbor and friend, Frank Lange, whom he last had seen as the latter was waiting for a street car to convey him to the beach the Sunday previous to the discovery of the almost nude body.

Carlson said Lange was in fine spirits at that time.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. A. H. Rankin and Dr. J. C. McGovern, San Mateo County coroner.

Deceased had sustained a fractured skull, evidently caused by a blow from a hammer or some other blunt instrument; a fractured nose, fractured sternum (chest bone broken in two) and other injuries. His eyes were badly discolored and there were many cuts and bruises covering the face. A strip of skin and flesh had been cut from the abdomen, doubtless to remove evidence of tattoo marks or a scar that might aid in identification.

All the clothing on the body when washed ashore consisted of a brown silk tie and one high lace black kid shoe and one stocking.

Deputy Coroner Luella Pepper, assisted by a number of police officers, conducted the investigation at the Lasswell mortuary establishment in Daly City.

All who aided in the identification stated Lange carried large sums of money on his person, he having in his possession the day previous to his disappearance about $300 in cash.

Mrs. Ashton told the deputy coroner Lange had been in an accident recently and had a broken tooth that had later been crowned. Investigation revealed this evidence as correct.

The finding of the coroner's jury was that deceased had come to his death about six days prior to the finding of the body by drowning.

The funeral will be held from the Lasswell mortuary at a later date, Assistant Public Administrator having instructed the deputy coroner to take charge of preparations.

AUXILIARY TO HAVE ELECTION
NEW OFFICERS*Activities Of Old Glory Are Expected To Interest
Entire Membership

Nominations and election of officers for the ensuing year will be held at the next regular meeting of Old Glory Auxiliary, this Friday evening at Eagles Hall.

The usual good eats will be served by the committee.

Sisters Lewis, Collins, Dorn and President Ireton attended the meeting and election of officers at McQuaide Auxiliary No. 1205, San Francisco. Staff Officer Ina Azevedo was also present on her official visit of inspection.

San Mateo-Santa Clara-Bi Counties Council will have the next regular monthly meeting Saturday evening, October 13, at Redwood City. Junior Past President Della Campbell of Old Glory Auxiliary will preside at this session in the absence of Council President E. Augustus, who is attending the national convention at Louisville, Ky.

The Sewing Club met last Wednesday at the home of Sister Beckett. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess at noon, after which the ladies settled down to an afternoon of quilting. Members present were Sisters Gaitor, Lewis, Dorn and Ireton.

Mrs. Elizabeth McPhedrain of Risel street spent last Sunday as the guest of Mrs. Nellie Fogarty of Grove street, Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Martino of Acton street are receiving congratulations of their many friends on the birth of a son on Wednesday, October 3.

The item last week regarding birth of a baby to Mr. and Mrs. Richard McDonough of Winchester street inadvertently stated the boy was born at St. Luke's Hospital. The birth occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Tanforan Flower Shop, formerly of 6147 Mission street, will move the latter part of this week to new quarters at 6182 Mission street, near the Lasswell undertaking establishment.

Fred Willis of Bepler street was taken to the Villa Sanitarium on Monday evening of this week, suffering with an infection on the index finger of the left hand.

An application for a marriage license has been filed in San Francisco by Louis Nevi, 28, of Daly City, and Norma Norris, 24, of Claremont, Cal.

Mrs. M. White, and son Harold of Theta avenue returned Wednesday evening from Westwood, Cal., where they attended the funeral of Emerson Barr, son in law of Mrs. White. Barr was accidentally drowned in the lake while at work at the lumber mill.

Harold King of Templeton avenue was rushed to the Community Hospital, Tuesday night, suffering with a ruptured appendix. At present writing he is in a serious condition.

A mass meeting of the Townsend Old Age Pension Club will be held in the Jefferson Union High School Auditorium on Thursday evening, October 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Alexander of Oakland were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. McDermott of Templeton avenue this week.

DAUGHTER OF WELL KNOWN RESIDENTS WED

Brilliant Ceremony Unites Popular Young Couple At Fire House

Miss Myrtle Augustien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Augustien of Evergreen avenue, became the bride, last Saturday evening, of Elio E. Domenici, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Domenici of Sandowna street, San Francisco. The wedding was solemnized at 8 o'clock in the fire house of Company Four on Peoria street, Daly City. Judge Ellis E. Johnson performed the ceremony.

The fire house was beautifully decorated in palm branches, greens and white crepe paper streamers. The bride and groom stood before an altar made of asparagus and maiden hair fern and white stocks. Huge baskets of white chrysanthemums and potted palms completed the setting.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was prettily gowned in white crepe and wore a long tulle veil held with a cap of lace with a braided white net halo held with orange blossoms on the sides. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Rita Corish was the maid of honor and wore a blue taffeta gown with pink sash and a blue taffeta turban to match. She carried an arm bouquet of pink baby roses and blue delphinium.

Mr. Raymond Grazziano served as best man.

Miss Jessie Augustien, sister of the bride, and Miss Jennie Domenici, sister of the groom were the ushers.

Mrs. Laura Coleman played the wedding march and sang "I Love You Truly" preceding the service.

Following the ceremony, a reception and dance were held in honor of the happy young couple and a buffet supper was served to about two hundred relatives and friends.

Mrs. Domenici, who was born on Evergreen avenue in Daly City, attended both the Crocker and Jefferson Union High Schools.

After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Domenici will make their home on Santa Barbara avenue.

Miss Valentine Morehouse of Twenty-second street, San Francisco, was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Verbrugge of Whittier street on last Sunday.

The Emergency Relief office, formerly on Hillcrest drive, moved this week to 29 Theta avenue, where it has larger quarters. Mrs. M. Chesney, in charge of social service of the north end of San Mateo County, has not yet been given a definite location.

Mrs. G. C. Lindorff of Niantic avenue, who has been seriously ill for the past month, left Sunday for Concord, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. A. Rassmussen, indefinitely.

Mrs. A. Statton of Ellensburg, Wash., arrived here Wednesday morning and contemplates spending about two months visiting at the home of her son and daughter in law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Statton of Evergreen avenue.

Albert Chesterman and Eugene Nation of Peoria street returned home Thursday morning after spending the past six months at the CCC camp at Orland.

Peter Morgan Jr. of Niantic avenue left early Wednesday morning for the Yosemite Valley, where he will spend a two weeks vacation visiting an old friend.

ASK APPROVAL OF PLANS FOR NEW HIGHWAY

Council Transacts Business Of Routine Nature At Its Regular Meeting

The City Council of Daly City met in regular session Monday evening, with all members present and Mayor Smith presiding.

The first order of business after reading the minutes of previous meetings was reading of bids for a new pump for the water system well.

There was only one bid, and it was decided to postpone action in regard to the matter until the next regular meeting of the council.

A communication from the P. G. & E. Co. stated the city meters had been corrected and rebate ordered.

A communication stating the Peninsula division of the League of California Municipalities would meet at San Jose on Thursday, October 18, was read and it was suggested some members of the council should attend. The matter was referred to the superintendent of the water works.

Communication from the Fire Commissioners made mention of new fireman at Station No. 3.

A resolution requesting the government's co-operation in the development and extension of sea walls on the southwesterly shore of San Francisco Bay, extending into San Mateo County, was unanimously passed.

A request from the State Division of Highways that the council pass a resolution endorsing the plans for the Mission street widening was laid over until the next meeting.

The City of Palo Alto invited representatives to attend open house at that city to visit the city establishments and inspect the water system. Members of the council will probably attend.

A number of other communications were read and placed on file.

The council adjourned to meet informally next Monday evening.

Boy Injured By Automobile

Loyal Smith, 5 years old, of 5980 Mission street, was struck by a machine driven by George Bertucci, at Mission and Templeton avenue at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The child sustained a broken right leg and an injured hip. He was taken to the Villa Sanitarium for treatment. Bertucci was given a ticket and released by local police officers.

Free vaccination against smallpox will be administered in the public schools here Tuesday morning, October 16. At General Pershing at 9; Victa Grande at 10, and R. S. Thornton, Colma, at 11. Written consent of parent is necessary for the child to receive this treatment.

Louis Moran of Berkeley was a guest over last weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Callaghan of Westlake avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Strathman and children of Niantic avenue and Mrs. A. Hansen of San Francisco motored to Byron, Sunday, and visited with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Callaghan of Westlake avenue, Mr. and Mrs. J. Strathman of Niantic avenue and Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gillett of Twenty-first street in San Francisco.

Mrs. A. Hansen of San Francisco was a dinner guest, Tuesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Strathman of Niantic avenue.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES OF INTEREST

(By L. M. Hill)

Daly City Post No. 410 and Daly City Unit No. 410, American Legion Auxiliary, held a banquet last Saturday evening, honoring the Past Commanders and Past Presidents of the organizations.

There was a large number of both Post and Unit members present, who enjoyed a well planned evening. All had a pleasant evening and we hope this will become an annual affair.

The honored guests were: Past District Commander R. L. Crane, Past Commanders O. H. Talmadge and L. M. Hill and Past Presidents Catherine Foreman, Julia Jordan, Margaret Kenny and June Craft.

At the San Mateo County Council of the American Legion meeting, held in Redwood City last Friday evening, Commander R. L. Crane of Daly City and his staff were installed by the ritualist team of the 40 & 8, of San Mateo Voiture No. 393.

Plans are going ahead rapidly for the Armistice Day Ball to be given by the Daly City Veterans' Organizations on Saturday evening, November 10, in the Daly City Auditorium. Be sure and plan to spend the evening with us. You are assured of an enjoyable time.

Continue Tournaments

The single tournaments were continued last Saturday, at the Pershing playground.

The winners were George Felsch, Gene Doyle, Richard Bolger, Willie Finetti, Erwin Gimovsky, James Frazier, Bob Bannatyne and Tommy Gunn. These winners will compete against each other at the playgrounds tomorrow.

BAND MUSIC HEARD TUESDAY EVENINGS

Every one should go up any Tuesday evening and hear our band play. If you have not yet listened to the sweet strains of the music they dispense, you should avail yourself of the earliest opportunity to do so.

If you ever hear the band, you will agree that it is a much needed addition to Daly City and you will be willing to assist in building up the fund to secure uniforms for its members.

This is a community movement and should be fostered by every citizen.

The City Council is to be asked to endorse the band's activities and also to assist in raising funds to outfit the members.

Get behind this worthy cause and encourage the boys by coming up and hearing their practice.

A number of citizens already have shown their appreciation by materially assisting toward raising the necessary amount for the uniforms. Do your part also.

Every civic and fraternal organization in the city should get behind this movement. The boys have always willingly given their services to any organization asking for them, and will continue to do so in the future, and a uniformed band will be one of the best advertising mediums any community could have.

Truck Damages House

The family of Dr. F. C. Callen of Wellington avenue had a private earthquake of their own at an early hour Tuesday morning of this week when a truck crashed into the basement of their home.

Sam Pedrus of 34 Vale street, a driver for the Witt Dairy, had parked his truck on Wellington avenue between Brunswick and Winchester streets. The brakes became loosened and the vehicle backed down the hill striking the Callen house. The garage doors were badly damaged.

Thank Their Friends

The officers and members of the Registered Unemployed of Daly City sincerely thank their many friends who helped make the whist party and raffle a financial success. We also thank the Eagles for the use of tables and chairs, and also the Daly City Record for liberal press notices.

Joe Maisel acted as chairman of the whist games, Jim Callan was chairman of the raffle.

STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR SUPERVISOR

Dr. C. V. Thompson, Burlingame, chairman of the county board of supervisors, this week launched his general election campaign for re-election from the fifth supervisory district. He revealed that a preliminary survey of his chances for success indicated they were never better.

Supporters of Dr. Thompson announced today that many prominent county residents, engaged in other campaigns before the primary election have voluntarily offered their support to the supervisor in the general election campaign. Among them, it was pointed out, are some of the county's most outstanding civic leaders.

William (Bill) Brownlee, Millbrae, prominent American Legion man and opponent of Dr. Thompson in the primary, has this to say:

"All over the county I find a definite trend to Dr. Thompson, especially among broad visioned people, interested in the welfare of the county. The primary election and some of its last-minute propaganda has served to convince the public there seems to be a definite move on the part of a certain county element to run in a supervisory ticket to gain control of the board. Dr. Thompson is independent as his long service in office has proved."

Similar expressions have come from many other prominent citizens.

OLD SONG UNDER BAN

Because it contains the S O S signal a phonograph record of "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," has been banned from all Australian broadcasting stations. When it was broadcast recently the signal was picked up by a ship and mistaken for a distress call, resulting in a general alarm among nautical men.

Age 13

Old enough for strong drugs?

It is not wise to give a laxative of adult strength to a child, just because you give it less often or in less amounts.

Stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can often be traced to this single mistake.

There is a better way to relieve those occasional sluggish spells or constipation in a child of any age:

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Doctors advise liquid laxatives, and hospitals use the liquid form. Almost any child who has been convalescing in the hospital usually comes out with bowels working like a well-regulated watch.

Make the change now to pure, California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you won't risk any more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition. Those little upsets and complaints just disappear as a rule and the child is soon normal and happy again.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

News of the Week

Along with the sad information that post office officials find this state's big trees "just too big" to put on a postage stamp design, comes the news that San Diego is giving a stamp show. More than 50 collectors have placed their treasures on exhibit in the Fine Arts Gallery, Balboa Park.

A state-wide program to fit transients for a return to normal life is being started by the Federal Transient service. More than 7,200 men and boys in the state's 57 transient and labor camps are to be educated. Qualified instructors will coach the boys in subjects which most interest them, vocational training being stressed. Older men will be taught trades in which they already have some proficiency.

Federal Emergency Relief Administration officials in Washington will "stand by" California until the proposed $24,000,000 relief bond issue becomes available, Vernon Northrop, FERA administrator for the state, announced. Officials were pleased with California's attitude to help her unemployed.

An ingenious counterfeiting plant has been uncovered at Placerville and its two operators arrested. District Attorney Henry S. Lyon said the men, A. B. Stewart and H. E. Boles, admitted manufacturing spurious bills by using chemicals and acids to loosen the ink from good money and to transfer it to plain paper.

Pascual Ortiz-Rubio, former Mexico president, is planning to establish a Spanish American university at San Diego. "It will be a place to which Spanish-speaking and English-speaking folk can go to learn each other's language and customs so that they may the better understand each other," he said. The former president plans to open the university next year.

Governor Merriam is editing a book which is to contain arguments for and against the 17 proposed amendments to the state constitution. For five of the amendments he has positive side writers only, and is seeking men and women who can give the negative. The book will be sent to every voter in the state.

Clubs have been formed, benefit dances given, and mass meetings held as evidence of southern California's interest in the Townsend old age revolving pension. Enthusiasts say acceptance of the plan would mean eight million persons, 60 or over, retiring on $200 a month, paid by the government, and leaving their jobs for younger workers. Dr. F. E. Townsend, originator, said the idea of such a pension is the result of his work among the indigent sick.

California is much interested in the Hawaiian sugar quota as stipulated in the Jones-Costigan Sugar Control Act. Believing that they should be allowed to export 975,000 tons to the mainland, and only being allowed 915,000 tons, under the quota, planters are testing the legality of the act in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. Enforcement of the act would mean unemployment for California workers and for Pacific Coast shippers, it is asserted.

Some day someone will erect a monument to rats, mice and guinea pigs. In this particular case rats and mice have aided Dr. Matilda M. Brooks of the University of California in checking growths of tumors. Over a four-year period Dr. Brooks has implanted tumors in rodents and then treated them with methylene blue. Experiments show the dye causes infected tissue to consume more oxygen, not only checking abnormal growth but causing retrogression of the disease.

Important resolutions passed at the recent meeting of the California League of Municipalities are to urge President Roosevelt to authorize immediate starting of work on the Central Valley Water project as a Federal project, to make non-profit making municipally-owned utilities non-taxable, and urging arrangements so that municipal lighting systems can light state highways which run through unincorporated areas near the municipalities served. The league believes government cost must grow with increased government activities.

"One of the most important income sources in the state and one of the best barometers of better times" is the increased flow of motor tourist travel in California, declared D. E. Watkins, secretary and general manager of the California Automobile Association. "Definite increase in the volume of motor tourists during the summer season just closing is noted in reports from every one of our 34 offices," he added. He has just returned from the Western Motor Conference which met in Colorado to discuss highway promotion, beneficial motorcar legislation and increased tax burdens on autos.

With the approval of $65 professional and technical projects by the State Emergency Relief Administration, nearly 90,000 jobs are being made available for California's "white collar class." A rotation system will be used, giving as many as possible a chance to work.

California is the CCC camp center of the nation. Thirty-six new camps will be constructed in the state this winter, this figure being more by one than the total number operating in any other state. Altogether California will have 124 camps.

Swagger Furs Will Attend Game

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN REGARD to the swagger, swanky sports furs which will attend the football games, here's the newest of fashion notes—a seven-eighths brown lapin coat with a lighter brown suede skirt. Fancy what a sensation in spectator row such a novel and stunning combination will create. Before telling further exciting news about football modes, we would like to stop long enough to say that suede is a new enthusiasm not only among sports fans but the loveliest of evening gowns are being made of this novel media. One such recently created in Paris for a leading American film star is of suede in that seductive "dusty pink" which is so flattering to most complexions.

To continue with more football fashion thrills, registering high in the list is the suit that uses eel gray lapin for a swagger coat which takes unto itself a skirt, scarf and belt (across front only) of wool knit in the new pine green which is so widely acclaimed this season. Other refreshingly out-of-the-ordinary sports style items include huge fur pockets, tiny fur cuffs, tuxedo revers of fur, the fur waist-depth cape, which is very important, also detachable fur vests which keep you extra warm, high winds or no high winds.

Which all goes to show that the new football and otherwise sports furs are making novelty their big appeal this season.

For breath-taking novelty we cite the new suits which are fashioned of tweed in a tapestry effect (very new) that blends blue, red, purple, green and brown in indefinite stripes. Add a broad scarf collar and big pockets of brown caracul and go where you will you will sight nothing more eye-filling in the way of a sports spectator costume.

The girl in the picture to the left has selected a perfectly stunning fur-trimmed suit to accent her appearance on the grandstand. This model is as dressy as it is sporty, and therefore can be properly worn most anywhere in the daytime. Its tuxedo revers of fur stamp it as being one of the newest of the new, for the fur-rever styling is "just out." A muff, too! Just as soon as the "frost is on the pumpkin," knowing fashionables will begin to carry muffs this season. All sorts of muffs with wee muffs in the lead, also the new accordion muffs so long and narrow, they crinkle up like the instrument they are named for. The muff here shown is a compromise between the two. The wide fur cuffs and the generously cut sleeves are also important style features.

The handsome coat, centered in the group is one that will quicken the pulse of any style-loving young modern. The large rolling collar and wide cuffs of dark gray Persian lamb are wonderfully effective against the lighter gray of the kidskin which fashions the coat. The dress of a plaid woolen in gay Mexican colors with green predominating and the felt hat in the new pine green is a perfect foil to the plaid gray of the fur.

A very wearable type of fur coat is shown to the right, being of a soft brown summer ermine which makes it comfortable in the early not-too-cool autumn days. The pelts have been worked diagonally in the rippled loose back. The hat is devastating. One glance at it and the wearer, and the conquering football hero will no longer be master of his fate. It is of the new Robin Hood type which flaunts a gay little feather—the sort that flirts with you whether you will or no.

IN TONES OF GREEN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Green is exceedingly voguish this fall. The costume pictured is of one of the newest ribbed woolen weaves in the much-sought-for pine-green which is so really handsome. This smart young modern has brought her dark green costume right up to date with her bag, belt and glove cuffs crocheted of green and sand crepe paper. Whatever colors you may have chosen for your fall costume, you will be able to find the right shades of crepe paper for crocheting matching or harmonizing accessories, for there are fifty shades to choose from, including black and white. Crepe paper crochets has become quite an outstanding vogue. The work is easy and the material inexpensive. The accessory ensemble pictured is crocheted in a particularly simple stitch so that even the amateur need not hesitate to undertake it.

Fur Bibs

Fur should be used on suits with the collar making a bib down the front, thus causing attention and warding off pneumonia at the same time.

GLOVES STAND OUT BOLDLY THIS FALL

Gloves go gay. Never have they been so pert and full of individuality as they are today.

Gloves of the present, and those in a formative state for the fingers of 1935, no longer resignedly fit in with the costume so that one notices them only as a part of the whole. They stand out boldly from the ensemble, flaunting their merit independent of their background. Their duty now is to strike a dominant note in the ensemble either by their color or cut or other oddment.

Evening gowns are now accompanied by gloves with a vast amount of open work on the arm, occasionally cut-steel beading, and sometimes by shirring, tucking or otherwise copying some novel feature of the gown.

Monograms Are Used on Coat Lapel or as Buttons

Everyone smart is giving her right name this fall season, according to fashion shows. Coat lapels and dress fastenings feature monograms sometimes a half-foot deep, in leather, metal, wood, and even marble. Using one's own initials in leather for buttons on sports jackets is the trick of the day.

Real flower jewelry is still popular with one large house, whose collection featured a necklace, earrings and even a ring made of pale pink dahlias.

White chrysanthemums are replacing gardenias and camellias as boutonniere and corsage flowers.

Artificial flowers are equally good, with copper gardenias stunning on new smoky-toned fabrics. In one instance six calla lilies were snakily twined as a girdle on an evening gown.

More Slashed Details

Slashed details are becoming more and more prevalent in dinner and evening dresses, posed not only just at the front but also appearing at side-front and back seams.

Gives Emphasis to Pretty Lines

PATTERN 1837

This frock has two ruffles over the shoulders which ripple refreshingly and a sash that ties its demure ends discreetly. It emphasizes the pretty lines of a young waist and the slimmness of a young figure, and is a thoroughly delightful thing in either a print or a plain fabric. Think of it, for instance, in peach-colored organdie—wouldn't it be charming? or in voile or dotted swiss—or fashion the yoke and ruffles of contrast.

Pattern 1837 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 3/4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

CALIFORNIA DEVELOPS GREAT RACING INTEREST

By J. W. MARCHBANK

The sport—
Which kings have fostered, and a country's pride,
Protest who may, will never cast aside.
—Old English Verse.

Racing has its ups and downs in England as well as in this country and it was at a time when there was a concerted attack on the sport that many verses became popular among the frequenters of Newmarket and Epsom, indicating the sentiment of the throngs. A critical period came about one hundred years ago, but Lord George Bentinck, so-called dictator of the turf, by a few drastic changes, saved the day for the great game. Right now it is stronger in the affections of the people of the "tight little isle" than ever before.

Judicious changes in the administration of the affairs of racing must be made from time to time in order to insure its continued health. As was pointed out by Sir Theodore Andrea Cook in discussing the evolution of the modern turf, if the rascality Lord George Bentinck checked had been allowed to flourish the grave of the English Thoroughbred might have been dug forthwith. One action especially salutary was the exclusion of undesirable from all courses under the control of the Jockey Club.

One paragraph in Sir Theodore's tribute to the turf dictator of the time is well worth quoting. He says:

"The outburst of the worst forms of villainy was only a natural disease through which the racing body politic had to pass in its progress towards maturity. Accidental symptoms of a similar nature occur in that body at all ages, just as they must in any healthy organic growth. But those critics who think they are peculiarly encouraged by racing are mistaken."

The men with the highest ideals for the sport must be on the alert at all times to stamp out the evils that may come in the development of racing toward maturity, as the English writer says. Happily we are in a position right now here in California to make rapid progress.

As an essential to progress I am firmly convinced, as I have said heretofore in this column, that in order to make racing even more of a pastime for the people, rather than for any particular section of the community, a reduction should be made at the fast approaching session of the Legislature in the commission on the pari mutuel pools. Fairness to all requires a cutting down of the "take" from twelve per cent to nine per cent.

A man's reputation for punctuality depends on his ability to guess how late the others will be.

BRIDGE RIVER MINING DISTRICT COMING INTO OWN

Rebirth Of Well Known Region Promises Great Wealth In Future

Sidney Norman, well known mining expert, writing in the Vancouver Sun, contributes the following interesting narrative:

Six years ago last month, Bridge River was just a name of no particular import—just another mining camp of the many that had come and gone in the west since '49.

Pioneer had completed its 100-ton cyanide mill, which succeeded the 20-ton plant of earlier history, and was turning up on tailings pile of 25,000 tons, said to run between $4.50 and $5 a ton.

Bralorne had not been born. Lorne, its predecessor, was starting the long crosscut which later became the main outlet for the splendid ore bodies opened by Bralorne.

The old camp up the mountain, closer to the antique water wheel and arrastra, was still in use, though some of the larger and more permanent buildings had been completed on the flat above Cadwallader Creek.

The population of the valley was largely confined to the small forces at the two mines, and Will Haylmore, at Haylmore, down by the Forks, who has been there since the year one, or before.

Enthusiasm concerning the camp was not, however, lacking even then and well does the writer remember the vehemence of the declamatory geological panegyrics of "Pop" Wilnot, who was then wet nurse to Lorne.

Out of my note book comes this explanation of the geology and it appears to be just as good now as it was then.

Said "Pop": "The main vein system strikes northwest-southeast and the northeast fissures are either fault planes containing drag ore, or are parts of the main system distorted out of regular trend by stress."

"The main vein system dips 60 or 70 degrees to the east and the northeast system has about the same dip to the north. The main system is faulted in a series of steps which throw to the east."

Work on the Lorne ground, which consisted of about 40 claims and fractions, covering the main zone for two and a half miles, had been largely confined to the Lorne, Blackbird, Ida May and Coronation before consolidation.

Under separate ownership and operation each had been equipped, at some time or another, with arrastras, succeeded by small mills on the Coronation claim.

Six years ago the mine was just one more of those more or less lemons such as the writer had been looking over in a casual way for many years. Through it he went in company with Robert Sloan and "Pop," otherwise H. C. Wilnot, M. E., one of the very best diagnosticians in the profession.

Referring to notes again, we find: "On the 600-foot level is a continuous shoot of ore, varying in width from 8 inches to 5 feet, with average of possibly 3 feet, extending 150 feet west and 280 feet east of shaft, total vein length 430 feet."

"Showing in west face about 4 feet of good-looking ore, partly of ribboned quartz and showing visible gold. In one bulge of the vein, about 75 feet from shaft, 4 feet of quartz was said to average $65."

"Also visited crusher 80 feet up from 600-foot level, and the 300 and 200 foot levels. Vein appears to be consistent over practically entire length so far opened, but varies greatly in width and evidently in values and is much broken by faults. "On the 600 the vein is almost vertical, with possibly slight dip to south, whereas dip of main vein elsewhere is north about 70 degrees."

Six Years' Changes

Pioneer will produce over $3,000,000 in this year alone and pay around $1,500,000 in profits to its shareholders. It is now milling 400 tons daily, employs close to 350 men and around it has grown up a prosperous community of more than twice that number.

Bralorne last year produced over $735,000, with milling capacity starting at 100, then increased to 150 tons daily and then to 265 tons, with which it finished the year.

Now the plant is being further increased, is treating 365 tons daily now, and within a short time will be handling 500 tons daily.

Power has been brought in over a 45-mile line from the Bridge River plant of B. C. Electric Company, over 300 men are employed and another community of around 600 has grown up to match the Pioneer town a mile or two further up the creek.

This year Bralorne should be well established upon a production basis rivaling that of its neighbor. Its dividend career was started this year at the rate of twelve and a half cents a quarter, since increased to fifteen cents.

Production Up Millions

Pioneer's total production, up till the end of last July, has been $6,972,300 and in each year from 1926 on it doubled its output.

Bralorne's total production is not definitely known, but must be well over $2,000,000 by this time.

In other words, within six years, Bridge River, through two mines, has become the leading gold producing district of Canada and among the richest in the world.

In between the two, lies Bradian, with 6300 feet of the main zone. Work is now going on there, with 50 men and heavy capital backing, and

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: Do trees that bear seedless apples have blossoms?

Answer: No. The tree is blossomless, having only stamens and a small quantity of pollen.

Question: What privilege is denied to dwellers in the Capitol City which citizens in every other city enjoy?

Answer: Inhabitants of Washington, D. C., may vote only in national elections.

Question: Where did Columbus first land in the Western Hemisphere?

Answer: San Salvador, now supposed to be the present Watling's Island, one of the Bahama group.

Question: From what trees is paper manufactured?

Answer: From the pulp wood of the birch, cottonwood, elder, eucalyptus, poplar and spruce.

Question: Who was the author of "Home, Sweet Home"?

Answer: John Howard Payne, an American writer and actor.

Question: How many school teachers are required in the city of New York?

Answer: Thirty-three thousand.

HAS A MAN NO RIGHTS?

George S. Wall of Birmingham, Eng., in three months' time was sentenced successively for thrashing his son, spanking his daughter cruelly and beating his wife. What next?

nothing short of a geological miracle will prevent one more addition to the producing list, no matter what happens in the outside areas, where much work is under way and whence may come at any time news that the pay area has been extended.

Six years. The writer is that much older. The mines are still in the nursery of time with long and profitable lives all before them as depth is gained.

CARE AT CROSSINGS URGED ON MOTORISTS

Two driving faults which frequently result in accidents are failure to reduce speed sufficiently at intersections and refusal to consider the rights of other drivers approaching or entering the crossing, according to the California State Automobile Association. Discussing the rules, both of law and courtesy, which should be observed when approaching an intersection, a statement by the motorists' organization comments as follows:

"Traffic accidents records reveal that a large proportion of collisions between automobiles occur at intersections, particularly within cities, because one or both of the drivers involved failed to observe certain rules."

"Speed limits and the right of way rules at intersections are clearly defined in the California Vehicle Act. The law limits speed to fifteen miles per hour at any intersection where the driver's view is obstructed. The law states that a driver's view shall be deemed to be obstructed when, at any time during the last one hundred feet of his approach to an intersection he does not have a clear and unobstructed view of the intersection itself and of all traffic on streets or highways for a distance of two hundred feet from the intersection."

"Another factor in intersection accidents is the attitude of driver's who, when traveling on arterial streets or highways protected by stop signs, ignore the rights of cross traffic. After stopping at a stop sign and yielding to immediately approaching traffic on the main traveled route, a driver is given the right by law to proceed and other cars approaching the intersection on the through highway must yield to him."

"Proper observance of the speed limit and right of way rules is necessary to protect the motoring public from the ever present danger of accidents at intersections."

Valve Grinding Hint

When valves are being ground care should be taken not to let particles of grinding compound get into the cylinders, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association. These particles are harder than cast iron and if caught between the cylinder walls and piston they never stop grinding. When completing the job carefully wipe all the compound and finish with gasoline or kerosene on a cloth as an extra precaution.

COLUMN OF N. R. A. FACTS

INFORMATION regarding the N. R. A. will be furnished each week by W. H. CLAY, Chairman of the local N. R. A. Publicity Committee.

Due to the drop in cotton production caused by the textile strike, the New York Times Index of Business Activity declined slightly for the week ended September 8. However, the automobile and lumber production climbed encouragingly—the automobile index rising to 58.4 compared with 41.1 for the preceding week, and the lumber index to 64.0, compared with 54.8.

As a result of a moderate increase in demand noted by most steel companies during the week ended September 15, a better feeling is also evident in steel circles. NRA's index of steel production for this period rose to 21 from 18.5 the preceding week.

Meanwhile, the brightest spot in the business picture these days is the revival of consumer buying on a broad front. Dun and Bradstreet says: "The unexpected increase in retail sales, which started in mid-August, has been gaining momentum without interruption, carrying the total for the current week (ended September 15) 10 per cent to 15 per cent above that of a year ago for the country as a whole."

Heavy rains are responsible for changing the complexion of retail business in midwest and southwest drought areas. These rains have come in time to insure adequate fall forage and are soaking into the subsoil, thus making farmers more optimistic about next year's prospects and more ready to spend money. The Chicago Bureau of the Wall Street Journal declares that "so long as AAA exists—and if the farmers in the mid-West have their way it will become a permanent fixture—the chances of selling farm equipment automobiles, mail order merchandise, etc., in the rural sections of the Great Plains are better than they have been in some time."

This change in sentiment is already substantiated by the fact that in some sections of the Middle West, dollar volume of retail sales for the week ended September 15 was as much as 45 per cent higher than in the same week last year.

In the South, retailers reported volume 25 per cent to 30 per cent ahead of last year. The largest increases were shown in wearing apparel, dry goods, groceries, home furnishings, hardware, paints and plumbing fixtures.

Buyers at New York wholesale markets report a steady rise of consumer demand for furniture, with sales gaining rapidly in all but the highest price levels. Wholesale markets also reflect an active call for hardware, particularly household appliances and kitchen utensils, and a growing demand for builders' tools and supplies. This last item is unquestionably related to the speeding up of the Federal Housing Program. Loans at the rate of a million dollars per day are being passed by banks throughout the country.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Good News For Housewives: Another step has been taken in the direction of eliminating misleading descriptions of goods sold to consumers. At the request of NRA's Consumers Advisory Board, the American Standards Assn. is proceeding to confer with producers, consumers and government groups for the purpose of designating qualities or grades. Present descriptions, according to the Consumers Board, "consist largely of superlatives piled up to such an extent as to make it entirely unsafe for a consumer to take them at face value." The new system should substitute terms of "fixed meaning for such laudatory adjectives as Supreme and Super," the report emphasizes, and should be applicable to goods bought at retail as well as wholesale.

Courts Continue To Uphold NRA: The Litigation Division reports that for the six day week period ended September 15, the previous record of favorable decisions and actions by the courts in cases involving NRA has continued. Only one decision out of twenty six was unfavorable. In addition the division adjusted six cases without recourse to legal action. Outstanding was the case of the Jay Day Frocks Co. which turned over $11,915 to the Code Authority for distribution to jobbers who had been compelled to make unlawful secret rebates.

Back Pay Restored To Workers: The Loma Dress Co. of New York this week posted a certified check for $17,500 with the Code Authority for the dress manufacturing industry to cover claims for back wages withheld from workers in violation of the code. The concern also consented to a permanent injunction restraining it from further violations, and in the agreement which hit signed the Loma Co. admitted the inter-state character of its business and the constitutionality and validity of NIRA and the dress code.

Houde Co. Deprived Of Blue Eagle: At the recommendation of the National Labor Relations Board, the Houde Engineering Co. of Buffalo has been deprived of the right to display the Blue Eagle in any form. The Labor Board held that the Houde Co. was impairing the right of its employees to bargain collectively by refusing to recognize the United Automobile Workers Federal Union—an A. F. of L. affiliate—as the exclusive representative of its workers. This union was chosen by the majority of the workers in the plant and the Labor Board held that it should therefore represent all the workers in collective bargaining. The Houde Co. refused to accept the decision and NRA's action followed.

Employment Gains: August factory employment increased 1 per cent over July, and payrolls increased 3 per cent according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. An increase was normal in August, reflecting seasonal activity in certain industries. Compared with August, 1933, the index of factory employment gained 3.9 per cent and the payroll index 9.5 per cent.

Dividends Improving: For the first eight months period of 1934, favorable dividend changes numbered 909, compared with 410 in the corresponding period of 1933. There were only 273 unfavorable changes compared with 1,237 during this period last year; 237 increased dividends were declared, compared with 77 in 1933, 258 dividends were resumed, compared with 118; 283 extra dividends compared with 121; and 131 initial dividends compared with 94 in the 1933 period.

Must Operate Under Fuel Code: The Cotton Textile Institution requested NRA to exempt from the provisions of the Retail Solid Fuel Code some 490 cotton mills which sell fuel to their employees at cost or less, as an accommodation. At the public hearing, NRA's Industrial Advisory Board stated that such sales by mills are in competition with retail coal dealers. It further declared that "statements were made that this and other activities on the part of employers, which might be termed somewhat paternalistic, were taken into account when establishing wages," and that it did not believe "that any services performed for employees should be considered as part of the wages paid." NRA's Labor Advisory Board and Legal Division also recommended unconditional denial of the mills' request, and NRA therefore denied the exemption.

OLD HISTORICAL DATA OF THE COLMA VALLEY

Incidents of Pioneer Days and Characters Recalled For Our Readers

The name, Colma is, as it should be, of special interest to all, because of the prominent part the Colma Valley played in the picture that has developed into this exceptionally prominent young city and community.

I have had many inquiries regarding the meaning of the name Colma, and from whence it was derived. In pursuit of this information it was surprising to learn that none of the present old settlers could tell me until I met one descendant of one of a group of first settlers composed of Jason Wight, Herman Dunks, Micael Comemford, J. E. King and Millard Hollingsworth. Those mentioned first came to California in pursuit of gold after Marshall had discovered the metal at the mill on American River and named the camp "Coloma," the meaning of which is said to be "vastly productive." Our informant was too modest to allow his name to be used, but said that this group did not amass vast wealth in mining, so decided to direct their efforts toward agricultural pursuits, the profits of which were in those days a real gold mine. They directed their steps southward from San Francisco via the El Camino Real, passing through El Portal, the point that is now the central business section of Daly City, and from here they visioned the wonderfully productive Colma Valley, where, besides the present thrifty young city, there were then as now thousands of acres of the finest garden lands in the world.

It was the Land of Promise, of vast production, so they decided on the name Colma Valley. The name was confusing in many ways, but remained until the name of School House Station postoffice was changed at which time the Postoffice Department in Washington dropped the second letter "o." Hence the change to Colma Valley, the name that will everlasting endure.

These garden pioneers did not know how well they had builded, but we of today and all future generations will ever realize.

Some day this great city will expand to absorb all these garden lands, but the name Colma Valley will endure forever. This is a prophesy that seems especially reasonable in view of the wonderful strides that have already taken place and especially so during the period since the great earthquake and fire on April 18, 1906.

Reader, do you know that there is a monument of solid granite in Daly City as a relic of the great 1906 holocaust? If not, direct your steps to the intersection of North and South Park avenues, at the east end of the park that was a gift to the city of Daly City by John W. Marchbank. This massive granite monument was at the old San Francisco City Hall, and through the always alert efforts of Edward Freyer, who was the first chairman of the Board of Trustees of Daly City, it was donated to the City of Daly City, and Mr. Freyer also succeeded in getting the United Railroads (now Market Street Railway) to bring it out free. It was first placed at the intersection of Mission Road and San Jose avenue in front of where the Bank of America stands, and it remained there until Mr. Marchbank donated that park site. There is no inscription thereon, but in time there probably will be.

In the foregoing mention was made of the change of name of the post-office from School House Station to Colma. Charles Merrell, the Southern Pacific Railway agent, was the postmaster and the postoffice was located at the depot. The main line of the Southern Pacific ran through Colma and Ocean View and continued as the main line until a few years ago, when the tunnels were completed and that became the main line route.

County Clerk Joe Nash and Jim Casey had a bean eating contest at the White House on July 5. Joe Nash lost the contest, as the beans gave out after he had consumed twenty-three plates. Jim Casey had devoured twenty-four plates.

The new physician in the Crocker Tract is Dr. P. D. Rowland, residing at 117 Peoria street.

Tim O'Rourke 211 Green avenue, returned from his eastern trip as a delegate to the Eagles' convention at Omaha.

October 1, 1909, the Colma Record moved from a small building south of Dr. Beattie's place in Colma to a room in the Knowles Building (now Masonic Hall), on Hillcrest, under the sole ownership of J. L. Brown, he having purchased the interest of Wm. C. Silver.

Racing has its ups and downs as in this country and it was no exception. A concerted attack on the sport, popular among the frequenters, indicating the sentiment of the time, came about one hundred years ago. The so-called dictator of changes, saved the day for the little isle in the affections of the people.

Judicious changes in the of racing must be made from sure its continued health. As the dore Andrea Cook in discussing the race, if the rascality Lord had been allowed to flourish, the Thoroughbred might have action especially salutary desirable from all courses Jockey Club.

One paragraph in Sir T. The dictator of the time is well known. "The outburst of the world a natural disease through which had to pass in its progress to symptoms of a similar nature, ages, just as they must in. But those critics who think that by racing are mistaken."

Aechibald H. Price, Manager

On her way to a faculty position in Lostonland Academy, Janet Mercer meets Prof. Arthur Fleming, also on his way to the Academy. At the school they are struck by an air of mystery pervading the place. Gordon Haskell, proprietor, welcomes them. Wilton Payne completes the Academy faculty in a schoolroom Janet finds a group which are teachers and supposed to be scholars, are wax figures. Haskell explains unusual circumstances connected with the conduct of the Academy. Among the pupils is Berenice Bracebridge, daughter of the late owner of the school. The story of the tragedy of Lostonland Academy is that of two sisters and two brothers of Berenice, who lost their lives in the water, some years ago. The wax figures were modeled in the likenesses of the four, and Professor Bracebridge's will provided that they must be preserved. Payne learns from Berenice that an uncouth giant whom Janet had seen with Haskell is named Balder, and is a valuable servant. From Jerry Moore, the only witness of the drowning of the children, Payne learns particulars of the tragedy. He begins to take an increasing interest in Berenice, as Fleming in Janet. Reading diaries kept by Professor Bracebridge, Payne senses something sinister in the drowning of the children. In the belfry of the old church he finds a long discarded Christmas tree. Its presence puzzles him. Balder makes a halting explanation of a preservation. Haskell proposes marriage to Berenice, but she tells him she does not love him enough to marry him.

"Me?" She looked at him suspiciously. "I want to know why you're not coming back to the academy?" She flushed. She was a pretty girl, with rather handsome eyes and an independent manner. "Mother has too much to do. She needs me home. I'll fetch her and Pop—or maybe I'll come into the kitchen. It's warmer."

Farmer Welford and his wife received him cordially, but seemed disinclined to talk about their daughter's desire to give up the pursuit of an education. "Sally thinks she'd better stay home," was all the satisfaction Payne could get; so he switched off to crops, and, thinking that he had quite fulfilled his obligations of inquiry, he rose to go.

"I'll step a piece with you," said Wilton, surprised, but glad of this turn of affairs. "I have to take some mash to the back pig on the lot," she explained to her husband, but she would in no wise permit Wilton to carry the mash. When they were some distance from the house, Mrs. Welford slackened her pace. "I didn't have to feed that pig; he's overfed now. But I knew well enough Sally would never tell you; and her father thinks it all nonsense. But she has a queer faculty—she sees things—that ain't there."

Mrs. Welford turned her bright eyes upon him, then looked toward the dark mass of the academy in the distance. "I don't expect you to believe any more than her own father does—but twice while she was at school she says she saw the four Bracebridge children—once in one of the halls, once on the grounds. She's awful sensitive about her way of seeing things invisible to other people. The second time it happened she came home and she says, 'Mom, I can't go back again. There's something wrong over there. I hate the place. I can't go back.' I coaxed her to tell me what was wrong, and then she told what she had seen."

"Mrs. Welford," Wilton remarked impatiently, "if a story is once started it never dies—and the step from believing a rumor, and then actually imagining ghosts or noises, is exceedingly short."

The wild grunts of the nearby pig now filled the air. Mrs. Welford emptied the mash into the trough, and then and only then answered Wilton. "You see, Sally is what they call—it's a long word—"

"Clairvoyant?" "That's it."

"It's a pity," Wilton commented, thinking it best not to argue the point. "Your daughter is very intelligent, and learns quickly; it's a pity to give up the chance for a winter's education because of silly stories."

"But them wax figures. You can't talk them away," Mrs. Welford remarked shrewdly.

"Mr. Haskell has locked the figures in."

"So I hear—but what Sally sees is not wax."

"I'm sorry! That's all I can say." He bade her goodbye and departed thoughtfully.

A Sunday calm brooded over the academy. Arthur and Janet had gone for a walk. Mrs. Denver was seated with Payne in the library, knitting and glancing from time to time out of the high, narrow windows toward the lake. Balder was out in a boat fishing, and Haskell was watching him from the shore.

"That's a lonely man—a queer, lonely man. Some days I am afraid of him and some days I'm sorry for him. He's going to lose everything in a year or two."

Some one passed the door. "Who was that?" Mrs. Denver asked.

"I wasn't looking."

"Some one passed the door."
"Yes, I half saw them."
Haskell came in after a while. "It's raw out," he commented. "Well, did you see Sally?"
"Yes. She won't come back."
"Why not?"
"She saw the Bracebridge children twice, she says."

Haskell laughed nervously. "Payne, you'll have a chance to study rural psychology. The country people about here are very foolish over this old place. They are worse than sailors."

"So it seems."
"Let us go down and see that the figures are safe. I get rather fidgety over them. With all these cock-and-bull stories about, one never knows what depredations might be attempted. I believe I'll have iron bars fitted in that window; then I'll rest easy."

Payne nodded. He rather dreaded the expedition to the basement, and followed Haskell reluctantly. The head of Lostonland academy had already taken the key from his hiding place. He drew it from his vest pocket, and opened the door with what Payne thought rather a shrinking manner.

The four wax figures were at their eternal tasks, with their little, secretive smiles which would never fade as long as they endured. Haskell and Payne stood looking at them in the chilly room.

"They're all right," Haskell said nervously. "Come, let's be going. It's as cold as a vault here. Yes, I'll have bars put on that window, and then I can rest easy at night. Sally Welford is a fool," he added bitterly.

Payne made no answer, but when Haskell had gone from him again on some errand, he started down the hill for another visit to the belfry of Lostonland church. That night he told Arthur Fleming that he thought he was at last on the track of the mystery which hung like a cloud over the academy.

CHAPTER VII

When Payne drove to Birndale several weeks later—the expedition had been twice postponed—Berenice, Janet and Arthur were with him, all of them in rather high spirits at the prospect of a trip over the hills and back undisturbed.

"I Didn't Have to Feed That Pig; He's Overfed Now."

shadowed by Haskell's ever-watchful eye. He had said no more to Berenice on a subject which she had made very clear to him was distasteful; but he had watched her and Wilton Payne as a caged animal might watch two running in freedom. He was seeing what Arthur and Janet saw, too—that "Hamlet" and Berenice were treading very close to the magic borders of romance. Payne had even forgotten that the academy was not like other places. It had become, indeed, merely a background for Berenice's beauty, for that tender yet strangely solemn charm which invested her and gave to her the quality of a winged creature who might at any moment vanish. She seemed to have grown taller, quieter—as if seeing in the distance the beckons of womanhood. Her guardian no longer wore his gardenia, but Payne often saw him pacing up and down the shores of the lake.

Birndale was a little, straggling town; but after the loneliness of Lostonland academy it seemed a populous and exciting place. Wilton had the key made; and Janet executed some commissions for Mrs. Denver. They lunched in a small restaurant, and then Arthur proposed the movies. The waitress who answered their questions was regarding the party with some curiosity.

"Are you the teachers from Lostonland academy?"

They said they were.

"I heard the principal's goin' to marry Miss Bracebridge."

"I am Miss Bracebridge, and I assure you there's nothing in the report."

"I ask your pardon. The hired man over there—that great tall fellow—told my brother it was so."

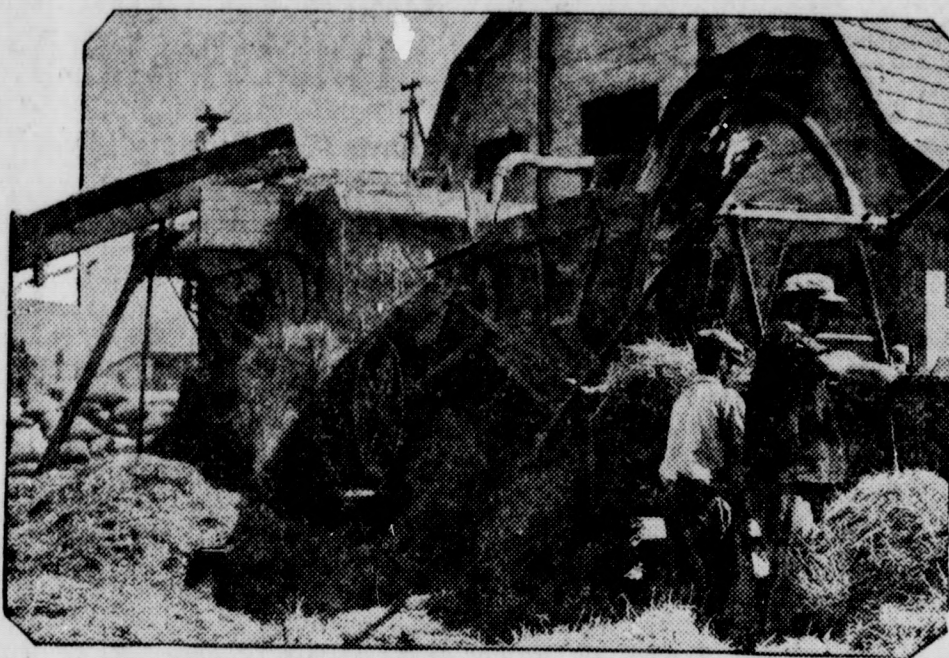

"Balder, I suppose. He talks far too much." Berenice looked earnestly at the girl. "I wish you'd deny this report—wherever you hear it."

"I will—if that's your wish," the waitress answered warmly. "I don't like to be talked about myself."

In the motion-picture theater, Berenice, who was seated beside Wilton, whispered: "I hope this report will go no further. It's just like Balder to talk—and about things he is ignorant of. I wish he could be sent away."

Modern Palestine

Modern Farming in Palestine

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE last decade has shown greater changes in Palestine than have occurred since the beginning of the Christian era.

The Holy Land, formerly the outpost of the East and the inspiration of the West, has become the meeting place of both.

Nowadays modern tractors, drawing a dozen plowshares at once, are seen beside the camel and the ass, dragging the primitive nail plow of Biblical times.

Beneath the cavern where King Saul sought the witch of Endor runs the pipe line which will carry the mineral oil of Iraq 627 miles, across desert and mountain, to the Mediterranean shore. Across the plain of Dothan, whence the Ishmaelite caravan carried Joseph into Egypt, speed high-powered automobiles.

Long lines of steel pylons, carrying electric energy generated by the River Jordan, bring light across the Plain of Sharon to illuminate countless homes formerly dimly lit by olive-oil lamps.

Modern machinery, delivering thousands of tons of soap annually, challenges the output of the soap-boilers of Shechem, now Nablus, who ply their ancient calling beneath the frowning scarp of Gerizim, where, in accordance with ancient religious rites, the few surviving Samaritans still celebrate their sunset sacrifice.

To meet growing needs, a new port has recently been constructed at Haifa, at the foot of Mount Carmel, in the only natural bay along the Palestine coast. There are speed boats on the Dead sea and seaplanes on the Sea of Galilee.

The creameries of a country-wide Jewish co-operative replace the lordly dish in which Jael, wife of Heber the Kenite, brought forth her butter.

Farming in Palestine

For centuries the Arab cultivator has carried on the primitive methods traditional throughout the East. Yoking his feeble oxen, his camel, or his ass to a rough-hewn wooden plow, he cultivates his wheat and barley, millet and sesame. In season he beats the fruit off his gnarled olive trees, and his animals stamp out the grain on the threshing floor.

Patches of unfenced land, scattered around the village, compose his farm; large tracts are still held in common and are subject to periodical distribution; while ancient custom releases herds of cattle to graze freely on the fields after harvest, thus rendering difficult the introduction of any but conventional crops.

Impressed by the development created by Jewish and German agricultural methods and aided by government agricultural inspectors, the people are beginning to stir.

Under Turkish rule the cultivator paid his dues in kind, and often money did not pass through his hands for months. Money is now universal, and the Arab, while learning its use, may be trained in thrift.

Initiative by the individual is rare. It is easier to get a number of villagers to adopt a new idea by discussing it with them together in the village meeting house than by arguing singly with each man. By the creation of Arab co-operative societies, distribution of improved seed, the establishment of government experiment stations, demonstration plots, and stud farms, it is hoped to better the lot of the farmer.

Palestine has been a highway on the caravan route between Egypt, Syria, and Asia Minor and the East for so many centuries that public security has always been of major importance. The Romans recognized this, and to protect their frontiers they flung their outposts the other side of Jordan.

Country Well Policed

Today Palestine has a modern civil police force composed of British and Palestinian personnel. Constables mounted on Arab horses for service in the hills, or on traffic duty in the towns, vie for smartness with the camel corps recruited from the Bedouin tribes of Beersheba, in the south.

Most of their work is behind scenes, but the traveler who happens to be in Jerusalem in the autumn and attends the annual police sports has opportunity of seeing them at work and play, from demonstrations of first aid to tent-pegging, from a tug-of-war to a musical ride by camels, followed by a display of camel-jumping.

Today reasonable security exists and the peasant is able to take his goods to market without the constant fear of being robbed on the way. However, occasionally the old-time bandit appears in the hills and gives trouble to administration, police and people before he is wiped out.

Before the war there were no roads in Palestine suitable for motor traffic; indeed, there was no need for them, for Palestine boasted only one automobile.

Instead of rough tracks and stony mountain paths, a network of modern roads now covers the country from Syria to the Egyptian frontier, from the Mediterranean to the River Jordan, and beyond into the gaunt steeps of Trans-Jordan. Desert routes to both the Sinai peninsula and to Baghdad are practicable for motor transport.

Among some 4,000 motor vehicles registered, the ubiquitous bus, built on to a truck chassis, has ousted the horsedrawn native cart and is seen everywhere, crowded with diverse passengers, from eastern prelates to office clerks, from inquiring travelers to veiled Moslem ladies, piled around with suitcases and farm produce.

Railways and Planes

Twenty years ago a French line from Jaffa to Jerusalem and a narrow-gauge line from Haifa going eastward across the River Jordan to join the pilgrim railway from Damascus to the Holy City of Medina, in the Hejaz, were Palestine's only railways. War operations necessitated a line from the Suez canal across Sinai, along the Maritime plain, by way of the ancient towns of Gaza and Lydda, the home of St. George, to Haifa. Passengers may now travel in comfortable sleeping and restaurant cars across the desert which Moses took 40 years to traverse and cross the width of Sinai and the Holy Land between breakfast and tea.

Recently fishermen on the Sea of Galilee, plying their age-old craft, were startled by the appearance of a flying boat, which, dropping from the skies, cleaved the waters of this sacred inland fresh-water lake which nestles below sea level in a cup of the northern hills. Galilee had become the meeting place of land and sea planes on the airway between Europe and eastern Asia.

In 1914 the only means of long-distance communication was by shepherd boy to herdsman shouting across mountain crag to hilltop—from highland to valley.

Today not only do networks of telegraph and telephone wires embrace the country, making it literally possible to speak from Dan to Beersheba, from Jordan valley to Mediterranean coast, but by land wire and wireless people may talk from Jerusalem or Jericho to Europe or America.

Palestine, birthplace of religious associations, but hitherto solely an agricultural country, is beginning to stir with industrial life. So far, neither coal nor oil has been found in commercial quantities; so, for the creation of power, the waters of the Jordan and Yarmuk have been harnessed.

Electric Light

An old sheik will tell you that the end of the war found the towns and villages of Palestine places of darkness, without a single street light. "Most of us were asleep soon after sunset, as the flickering light from an olive-oil lamp was of little use."

The country is now being surrounded by a network of pylons conveying electrical energy generated by the waters of Jordan.

South of the Sea of Galilee were erected regulating sluices and dams across both the Jordan River and its tributary, the Yarmuk. These two sources are connected with a mile-long canal, and the flowing waters are diverted into turbines generating 8,500 horsepower each. The energy is transmitted across Palestine at 66,000 volts. Jerusalem is supplied with light from Diesel engines operated by another company.

A striking change in Palestine is the modern method of building. New types have largely superseded the picturesque vaulted and alcoved homes of the Arabs, whose domed rooms necessitate walls a yard thick, with immensely solid corners to withstand the weight of stone on the roof. The cost is now prohibitive and iron girders, formerly unavailable, are cheaper supports for flat roofs.

With the main towns doubling their population in ten years and the all-Jewish town of Tel Aviv, which has sprung up beside old Jaffa to a flourishing city of 60,000 people, town planners have been active.

Owing to the cosmopolitan origin of their builders, every form of architecture is portrayed in the new homes, types of central and eastern Europe predominating. Restrictions on their height prevent lofty buildings being erected.

Country settlements are also adopting up-to-date practices and many a village now possesses charming villas. Jerusalem has a fine new hotel, aptly called The King David.

United States in Lead in Soap Consumption

Figures just published show that the world production of soap is on the increase. Of the 4,700,000 tons produced in 1932, Europe manufactured 2,500,000 tons, the United States 1,800,000 tons, Africa and Asia 300,000 tons conjointly, and Australia and New Zealand 70,000 tons.

The cleanest nation, statistically, is America, which leads the world with a consumption of 11.5 kilos of soap per head a year. Then follow the Netherlands, 11.1; Denmark, 10; Great Britain, 9; Australia, 8.7; France, 8; and at the other end of the scale Poland, Yugoslavia, Rumania, and Bulgaria with an average of only 2 kilos or less. A kilo is approximately two pounds three and a quarter ounces. China, which hardly washes at all, cannot be taken into consideration, but some of the smaller soap-using nations use efficient substitutes, and in Germany soap making is still largely a domestic occupation, one-man factories being widespread, thus making it difficult to obtain an exact estimate of the national output.

Royal Relations

King Edward VII of England was married to Alexandra, daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark. Her sister Dagmar was the wife of Alexander III of Russia. Their son, the murdered Czar Nicholas II, was a second cousin to the present English King George V. The resemblance between the two cousins was remarkable.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given to the youngest child.

Colma News Notes

The Colma Community Center board wishes to express thanks and appreciation to the members of the Colma Girls' Basketball Club and the coach, Bill Jost, for the successful social whist conducted by them last Saturday evening for the benefit of the Center. A substantial sum was realized and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

The members of the Colma Girls' Basketball Club and coaches were guests of Mrs. M. P. Brown on Monday evening at her home. Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Misses Myrtle Durbin, Alvena Jost, Alma, Betty and Tillie Camenzind, Mrs. Emily Vallarino, Mrs. Hilda Witt, Mrs. John Weimert, Miss Rena Guisti and Messrs. Bill Jost and John Weimert.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shields, Miss Betty Camenzind and Mr. Clarence Truskey were among the 60,000 persons who witnessed the Gaels' victory over the Bears at Berkeley Memorial Stadium last Saturday.

Miss Irene Bianchi of San Pedro avenue entertained friends Wednesday evening of this week.

The following were seen clamming at Thornton Beach early Tuesday evening: Messrs. Leslie Volkman, Ray Silicani, Bummy Schonne, Bert Silicani, Henry Lucas, John Bianchi, Angel Moresco, Louis Guisti, Car Gatlief and George Rossi.

Miss Esther Durbin is spending a brief vacation in Stockton with some friends.

Mr. Homer Lucas is sporting about in a new automobile.

The members of the "Sailorette Club" spent an enjoyable evening in swimming at Sutor Baths last Friday. Those taking part were Misses Rose and Maria Rochetta, Eleanor Nessler and Eleanor Biagini.

Many boys and girls from this section enjoyed a pleasant evening, skating at the Golden Gate Rink, last Friday. Mr. Henry Biggio entertained with outstanding stunts.

The Colma Volunteer Fire Department will hold their monthly card party on Saturday evening, October 13 in Jefferson Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Blumenthal entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. Petrocchi at a bridge party Wednesday evening.

A number of Colma residents enjoyed a whist party in San Francisco on Flood avenue, given for the benefit of Saint Finn Barr's Parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Deller are now residing with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lopez of Bryant street.

After spending six months leisurely touring Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Calegari and son Bill are expected home this week. Mrs. Calegari is the former Miss Luara Tosi.

Messrs. Roy Franzola and Carl Grossman attended the St. Mary's-California football game at California Stadium in Berkeley last Saturday.

Mrs. G. Bianchi and daughter Martha motored with friends to Concord Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fuchs and daughters, Marjorie and Dorothy, of Station avenue motored to San Jose on Sunday to visit relatives.

EL CARMELO PARLOR HOLD WHIST PARTY

Final plans have now been completed for the Monster Whist Party to be given on Wednesday evening October 17, by El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, for the benefit of the outstanding charity of the organization, the Homeless Children work.

For twenty-five years the Native Daughters have been finding homes for homeless children, regardless of color, class or creed, and it takes a considerable sum to carry on this work.

Mrs. Fredereka Volkman, chairman of the whist party, has many beautiful and outstanding prizes donated for this affair. Mrs. Volkman is being assisted by Mrs. Mary May, Mrs. Anne Biggio and the officers of the Parlor. The committee is looking for a large crowd and hope that the people of this community will support this wonderful charity.

Pioneer of Colma Passes

Hans Frahm, 79, of Colma passed away last Sunday night, following a heart attack in his home.

Frahm had been a resident of Colma for the past forty-six years.

The funeral was held from the mortuary parlors of Lasswell & Co. on Wednesday afternoon of this week at 3 o'clock.

Interment was in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bocci entertained the following on Friday evening of last week: Mr. and Mrs. W. Ricconi, Miss Rose Oleese and Mr. Albert Bertucci.

Mr. and Mrs. George Biggio of San Pedro avenue spent Wednesday in Guerneville with relatives.

Miss Angelina Mozzini has returned home after spending a month in King City with friends.

Mrs. Emily Vallarino and Miss Alvena Jost spent Sunday horseback riding to Ingleside and return.

The Happy-Go-Lucky Social Club will sponsor a dance on Saturday evening, October 13.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Nassano of Daly City were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Silicani of Washington street, Colma, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Paul Guisti returned home from Santa Cruz, recently, after working there for some time.

GEN. PERSHING P.T.A. HAS LUNCHEON AND REGULAR MEETING

The introduction of the new members to the regular members of the General Pershing P. T. A. was formally made at a luncheon given on Tuesday, October 2 at 12:30 p. m. The acquisition of these new members is the result of a successful membership campaign that was conducted by Mrs. R. Welsh, membership chairman, and her assistants, in the month of September.

The decorations for the luncheon consisted of prize dahlias on a T-shaped banquet table.

Miss Pansy J. Abbott, superintendent of schools of San Mateo County, and Mrs. E. I. Bartlett, Junior District President of the P. T. A., were guests of honor, and on either side of them were seated Mrs. Pape, principal of the General Pershing School, and her staff of teachers.

After everyone seemed to have had their fill of the food and delicacies prepared and contributed by the members, Miss Abbott spoke a few words on the school bond issue and regarding legislation embracing education in all its phases.

At 2 o'clock the regular monthly meeting was called to order by Mrs. L. Gimovsky, president, and all the business was transacted in due form. Mrs. R. Crane Jr. spoke on school bonds.

Mrs. E. I. Bartlett was the speaker of the day and has indeed inspired us to do bigger and better things in Child Welfare and P. T. A. work.

Some of the important projects discussed and passed on are a hallow-e'en party, to be given the children of General Pershing School. Mrs. Eason is chairman.

The lunch room is to be opened Monday, November 5. A healthy, well balanced menu is being prepared by the committee under supervision of dietitians.

A whist party is to be held in the auditorium of the General Pershing School on Thursday, November 1. Mesdames McNeerney, Davidson and Sadler are in charge.

Mrs. Parodi and Mrs. Eason are to be commended on their very successful luncheon and all enjoyed it.

Elect New Officers

New officers for the coming year were elected at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America, Court, St. Mary No. 1155. The session was held in Eagles Hall, Wednesday evening of this week.

After the conclusion of the business of the meeting, the members repaired to Peter's Lunch restaurant for a midnight supper.

The new officers will be installed on Wednesday evening, November 14, by District Deputy Mrs. Avita Day Vizzard.

DRUIDS IN JOINT ANNUAL PICNIC

On Sunday, October 21, all Groves and Circles of San Mateo County, of the United Ancient Order of Druids, are to unite in their first annual picnic, which promises to be a magnificent day's outing.

The affair will take place at the Menlo Hotel Park and will be an all day outing.

It is stated that preparations have been made for elaborate entertainment for the members of the Druids and their guests who present themselves at the picnic grounds on this occasion. Games of all kinds will be played. There will be a number of foot and novelty races and other contests, to be participated in by young and old alike.

An excellent orchestra has been secured, which will furnish music for those who enjoy dancing.

The committee in charge has invited all county officials to be present, and a number of these are expected to avail themselves of this opportunity.

Those planning participation in this outing may procure tickets from any member of any Druid Grove or Circle in the county, and by purchasing the same in advance of the day of the picnic they can make a saving.

GOVERNMENT HAS APPROVED COUNTY OFFICE BUILDING

County Executive Officer Walter T. Kellogg on Tuesday of this week announced receipt of telegraphic advice that the County Office Building proposal had been tentatively approved by the federal authorities.

The County Office Building will be erected on county property at the corner of Middlefield road and Marshall street, if the bond issue is voted approval at the November election.

The telegraphic approval received by District Attorney Scott follows certain amendments made in the formal agreement drawn under supervision of Architects William H. Toepke and E. L. Norberg, which provide for an outright federal grant of not to exceed $41,000 and a federal loan amounting to $112,000 to bear interest at 4 per cent annually, secured by bonds payable in the amount of $5000 annually from 1935 to 1942, inclusive, and in the amount of $6000 annually from 1943 to 1954, inclusive.

It is proposed to house in this building the county departments and offices for which there is no longer room in the present court house, built more than a quarter of a century ago when county business did not require present day facilities.

SERMON TEXT FOR SUNDAY MORNING

Rev. John R. Stevenson will preach in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning on "If God Be For Us, who Can Be Against Us?"

Services are held at 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m.

Rally Day will be observed in the Sunday School on October 21 at 10 a. m. The children of the community are invited at this hour.

Discussion Subject

The Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will hold the next meeting on Friday, October 19, in the auditorium of the Burlingame High School.

Jury panel type discussion will be tried out at this meeting. Mrs. Franklin P. Nutting of Palo Alto, certified teacher of parent education, will conduct the panel.

IN 5 YEARS TOT GETS LEAD IN 'TITLE ROLE'

"Little Miss Marker" Paramount's picturization of Damon Runyon's widely-read magazine story of the same name opens at the Daly City Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 14, 15, and 16, with Adolphe Menjou, Dorothy Dell, Charles Bickford and five-year-old Shirley Temple in the principal roles. It was directed by Alexander Hall from the screen play by William R. Lipman, Sam Hellman and Gladys Lehman.

The supporting cast includes Lynne Overman, noted Broadway and London stage star, who makes his initial screen appearance Jack Sheehan and Frank McGlynn, Sr. also of the New York stage, are in the film along with

LITTLE MISS MARKER

Warren Hymer, Sam Hardy, John Kelly, Crauford Kent and Tammany Young.

The story is a sensational yarn of a little girl left as security for a racing bet. The girl's father never does return, and she is taken over by a shabby, grouchy, tight-fisted book-maker, who tries to get advice from his gang of Broadway mugs. The girl takes a liking to her new environment and before long she is talking their lingo and acting their rough, slangy ways.

With a crooked racing deal and a romance on the side, the film reaches a heart-touching climax.

Death Of Old Resident

Mrs. Julia Markgraf of Wilson street passed away in Mary's Help Hospital in San Francisco last Sunday, following a long illness.

Mrs. Markgraf is survived by her husband, Henry Markgraf, and two sons and three daughters—Lawrence and Henry Markgraf, Mrs. Caroline Coleman, Mrs. Eleanor Kingam and Mrs. Margaret Espiseto.

The funeral was held from Lasswell's mortuary chapel at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday morning, thence to Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, where a requiem high mass was celebrated for the repose of her soul at 9 o'clock.

Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Catherine Foreman, Publicity Chmn.

Daly City Unit No. 410 had its first meeting last week and new officers outlined their programs for the year. The meeting was very well attended, and we are very happy to see so many of our new members out. On Saturday evening October 6, the ladies of the Auxiliary prepared a most wonderful dinner in honor of the Past Commanders and Past Presidents. This affair was most successful and I am sure it is to be the means of bringing together all the members of the Post and Unit.

Soon the program of membership will be the aim of our Unit Vice President. We invite you to be a member of our Auxiliary of the American Legion. We do wonderful things during the year for the disabled World War veteran in the hospital and for the widows and orphans of veterans, as well as local welfare. Our next meeting is to be on Wednesday, October 17. This Friday the San Mateo County Council will hold their installation of officers in Burlingame Hall at 8:30 p. m.

The Value of a Smile

The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while, that costs the least, and does the most, is just a pleasant smile. The smile that bubbles from the heart that loves its fellowman will drive away the clouds of gloom and coax the sun again. It's full of worth, and goodness, too, with human kindness blent—it's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

Benefit Night Planned

Planning one of the best events ever staged at a coast greyhound track, officers of the Edmund Parrott Chapter No. 16, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, are arranging for their benefit program on October 23, at Baden Kennel Club. Celebrities from all walks of life will attend the event.

A special racing program is being arranged for the evening in honor of the war vets.

PAST PRESIDENTS CLUB HAS MEETING

The members of the Past Presidents Club of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, journeyed to the home of Mrs. Frieda Schade in San Bruno for their regular monthly meeting.

A delightful evening was spent in playing Dutch Whist, with Mesdames Alice Anderson, Katherine Wight and Alice Oldham winning the prizes. Mrs. Alice Anderson then entertained the members by telling fortunes. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Those in attendance were: Mesdames Mary May, Fredereka Volkman, Anne Biggio, Matilda Herringa, Katherine Wight, Hattie Kelly, Alice Anderson, Rena Mathias, Irene Moresco and Alice Oldham.

To Hold Annual Ball

The members of the Peninsula Police Officers' Association will hold their annual ball at Peninsula Beach, formerly Pacific City, on Saturday evening, October 27.

The proceeds of these affairs are turned into the fund for the benefit of widows and orphans of deceased members.

Come and bring your friends and help support a worthy cause. A good time is promised to all. The music will be the best obtainable.

TALE OF VOYAGE OF COLUMBUS

The discoverer of America! Like many another hero this man of the hour was slighted and scorned, even looked upon as a half insane fanatic, during his stay on earth. Far seeing as he was, Columbus could have no conception of what his discoveries really meant to the world. That the course of history would be entirely changed, that prosperous, progressive nations would grow up in the new hemisphere which he had discovered, he did not imagine.

Other navigators, convinced that the dangers of the open sea were less than they had believed, made the same voyage; and one, Americus Vesputius, had the honor of giving his name to the great new continent. But Vesputius had been a friend of Columbus, and withheld nothing due his memory. Efforts were once made to change the name to give honor where honor was due—and call the western world Columbia, but the old name had become too firmly fixed to be changed.

On the four hundredth anniversary of the first voyage of Columbus in 1492 and 1493, there was held in Chicago a great exhibition to honor his name, and this was called the World's Columbian Exposition.

It must be borne in mind that Columbus did not originate the theory that the earth is round. Aristotle, before the beginning of the Christian era, had preached that doctrine, and many educated men through all the ages since his time had believed it. The mass of the people, to be sure, still held that the earth was flat, and even those who believed differently had some very curious notions on the subject. There could be no other inhabitants on the other side of the globe, they contended, because they would be walking head downward and would naturally fall off; and it was not safe for a ship to sail down one side of the earth, because it could not possibly get up on the other side.

But none of these difficulties discouraged Columbus. If the earth was round, the countries to the east—China Japan and the Indies—could certainly be reached by sailing westward, and he was willing to risk his life to prove it. Of the great continent of America, which lay in his way, he knew nothing.

His was, perhaps, the bravest exploit ever undertaken, for he was sailing not along the coast but straight out into the "Sea of Darkness," as the Atlantic was then called—every minute farther and farther from the only land he really knew.

History shows few figures more sublime. His ashes rest in a cathedral in old Seville. Spain may justly be proud that it was her king and queen, Ferdinand and Isabella, who believed enough in his theories to finance the expedition—who could look beyond the narrowness and ignorance of their day.

Today, October fourteenth, Columbus Day, is the time for us to remember what he did for us and the whole world.

DALY CITY NINE ON SHORT END OF CLOSE GAME

Local Boys Tied Score In Batting Rampage, But Effort Not Enough

The American Building Maintenance at their best and the Daly City nine not nearly as good as they have been, is the story in a nutshell of their opening league game, played at the Jackson diamond, Sunday.

Held to five scattered hits by Righton for seven innings, the local boys went on a rampage and tied the score in the eighth with a single triple and two homers, which sent Righton to the showers.

Risso, who replaced him on the mound, toyed with the local boys for the remainder of the game, and Jeff Martin and company did nothing more than provide the opposition that is necessary in a baseball game.

Two passes, coupled with two sacrifices and two singles, caused the finish of this bitterly contested game in the eleventh.

Regis and Dinneen excelled for Daly City, both at bat and in the field, while Giancoli and Righton copped the honors for the American nine.

The score:

CLAY ANNOUNCES CAMPAIGN OPENING

To the voters of the First Township of San Mateo County:

For the nomination for the office of Justice of the Peace of the First Township San Mateo County, which your votes made possible, I am deeply indebted, and for the same I extend my sincerest thanks. The general election is now to be held and I again ask for your support. In doing so I am induced to state that the office of Justice of the Peace of the First Township under the new Charter is an office that requires greater qualifications than before, consisting of a knowledge of law for correct legal interpretation, physical health that will permit of traveling from one part of the Township to another and holding Court for extended hours on account of the greater amount of work, now that the Charter compels one man to do the work that was formerly done by two.

The Judge should be a man qualified to execute this important office through actual experience gained by practice in all the City, County and State Courts, and who understands human ailments and weaknesses, to the end that first offenders, and young men who are not confirmed criminals, shall be treated so as to be made into self respecting citizens, rather than unwisely convicted and added to the already too great human scrap heap.

Citizens pay for such unselfish help and are entitled to the best and on this basis, knowing I am qualified in every particular, I again appeal to you for your endorsement and promise in fulfillment the best that is in me.

VETERAN FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION MEETS

The Veteran Fireman's Association held the monthly meeting Friday evening, October 5, at the hall, 188 Santa Barbara avenue. President A. Rickman, who had been on the sick list, was back to preside.

The board of directors reported progress on the annual whist, which will be held Saturday evening, November 24, at the City Auditorium. Besides the usual turkeys, a great number of attractive prizes have been promised by the committee.

Chaplain H. H. Smith gave an interesting report on the convention of California Municipalities, to which he was a delegate. Matters pertaining to fire departments of smaller cities was especially interesting to his hearers.

In behalf of the association, President Rickman presented Past President William J. C. Goldkuhl with a life membership card in recognition of his valuable services rendered the association, particularly for the welcome sign. The sign is of excellent workmanship and describes the different functions of the association throughout the year. Comrade Goldkuhl hesitated in accepting this token, stating his services were given gratis and without expectation of reward.

After the meeting the usual refreshments were served by the efficient chef, John Hesselein.

Engagement Party

Mr. and Mrs. V. Conci of Parkview avenue entertained at their home on Saturday evening at an engagement party in honor of Miss Marcella Monette and their son Bruno, who have announced their engagement.

A two piece orchestra furnished music for dancing and a buffet supper was served to about two hundred guests.
